

Abstract

A computerized management system which is administrated with the use of a computer network linked by modem or other communication means, comprising a 5 server and its database, administration and communication software; vending machines equipped with computer systems allowing for remote inventory management and methods to put products on the market which are offered via a vending machine including medical or other supplies.